CP GOV CH 8 section 1 Textbook reinterpretation exercise pgs. 354-360

Directions: complete each of the following sections based on the chapter designated.
This exercise will be completed based on the section provided and will be a single reinterpretation based on the whole section.

1. Part 1

- a. Select a total of Three important individuals, treaties, groups, or events that you would regard as significant to The Role of Government. Use either of the following criteria to justify each of your selections.

choose one of the following methods to describe your answers*

- i. Significant events and people are those which have the greatest impact, either positive or negative, on our political structure. You must show how your selections have made an impact in Politics.
- ii. Significant events and people are those which relate in some way to us, in the present, who are being affected by their actions. You must show a direct correlation between your selections and how they are directly affecting your life today.

2. Part 2

- a. React to the reading by recording:
- i. 2-3 questions you have about the material that is covered in the reading. Make sure your questions are thought provoking and can be debatable.
 - ii. Reactions you have to the particular events and people (select at least one event and one person.)
 - iii. Two particular phrases or sentences which you want to remember- write down the phrase and explain why you selected it.

3. Part 3

- a. Describe your feelings to the driving question as you read. How does each section help build upon your answer and what parts are still left unresolved. Make sure your response is at least one paragraph long (5-6 sentences) and it tells me why?
- i. How does the constitution protect the rights of individuals against government?
